CONSTRUCTION ACCOUNTING & FINANCIAL MANAGEMENT, 3/e helps construction professionals and construction management students master the principles of financial management, and adapt and apply them to the challenge of profitably managing construction companies. It integrates content that has traditionally been taught through separate accounting, finance, and engineering economics texts. Students learn how to account for a construction company's financial resources; how to manage its costs, profits, and cash flows; how to evaluate different sources of funding a company's cash needs; and how to quantitatively analyze financial decisions. Readers gain hands-on experience through 220 example problems and over 390 practice problems, many of them based on situations actually encountered by the author. This edition adds more than 100 new discussion questions, and presents financial equations and accounting transactions more visually to support more intuitive learning.

This volume includes Maryellen Giger's overview of computer-aided detection and diagnosis using examples of breast cancer, lung cancer, and colon cancer. Michael McNitt-Gray offers an update on how CT doses are being reduced as manufacturers reduce tube rotation times and increase the number of detector rows, thereby opening up this technology to new applications. Ellen Yorke and Chen-Shou Chui discuss the latest in the elusive goal of treatment plan optimization. Though not an "advance" per se, Donald Herbert offers a helpful overview of the various types of statistical models that are at the heart of presenting empirical data in medical studies.
